injured Saturday afternoon in the crash of their car and one driven by a Northfield (Ohio) man on Route 30 east of Chester, Hancock County sheriff's deputies report-

A short time later, a Newell motorist escaped unhurt but his car was demolished when it was forced off 6th St. Rd. in Newell.

Involved in the accident on Route 30, a half-mile east of the Pennsylvania state line at 3:50, were the 1960 car of Theodore Bober, 47, of Northfield, and the 1959 auto of Samuel Black, 26, of Aliquippa R. D. 1.

Deputies said Bober's westbound sedan skidded on snow and slush, went left of center and struck the oncoming Black vehicle.

Black suffered a possible skull fracture, while his passenger. Charles Edwin Straight, 33, of Hookstown, received abrasions and contusions of the forehead and left hand and multiple fractures of the right foot. They were treat ed at City Hospital.

Deputies said Black's vehicle was demolished and there was $500 damage to the Northfield resident's car. No charges were filed.

In an accident at 5:30, Harold Cunningham, 43, of 6th St. Rd., Newell, escaped unhurt but his 1958 auto was demolished when forced off the 6th St. Rd. by an unknown vehicle. Deputies said Cunningham's car struck two guardrails.

The Innocent And The Guilty

The neighboring city of Youngstown again finds itself placed in an unfavorable light as the result of a national magazine article reviewing the gangland bombings which have shaken the community over the years.

Several letters to the editor in Sunday's Vindicator expressed grave concern over the situation and brought to mind again one of the unfortunate aspects of such publicitythe innocent are forced to bear the slurs of bitter criticism along with the guilty.

There is a veiled warning here which should awaken the respectable people not only in Youngstown but in other communities as well. The burden is on them whether they like it or not. They can't afford to sit back and do nothing if they would keep the respect of those on the outside looking

They must come to the fore as an organized group in one way or another. Individual effort isn't enough to combat the forces which tear down a community.

The longer the respectable do nothing, the greater their task when they see the necessity of taking the bull by the horns. The rotten apples in a barrel always have the advantage up to the point where the others decide to unite and do something about it.

Idle Thoughts

Thoughts on a Sunday afternoon: Empty storerooms are depressing at the best. But we wonder if those responsible for renting them wouldn't be helping themselves and the community by having the windows washed every now and then. It would remove some of the "dead" feeling that now surrounds the unused buildings. . . . The yellow lines on the three-lane stretch in California Hollow again are conspicuous by their absence. And with the freeway construction going on nearby the traffic danger appears to have been aggravated even more, with much of the friendly berm having disappeared. Local and district drivers are aware of the three lanes. Many others are not ... . More ashes are needed where the new freeway and the old highway meet.

There are several deep holes that could spell

A Salute To The Leopards

Despite Saturday's heart-breaking loss, Midland has every reason to be proud of its high school basketball team which battled to the semi-finals of regional WPIAL tour-

With only one letterman returning, it was a team which had been expected to have only a so-so season, and certainly the semifinals of tournament play at the Pitt Fieldhouse was the farthest thing from the coaches' and players' minds when they went about their practice sessions back in December.

But sound coaching and a group of determined players who met the challenge did the trick and the Leopards came through in outstanding fashion.

They provided thrill after thrill for their followers during regular season play and well into the final minutes of Saturday's game against long-time rival Aliquippa. They gave all they had. That's all that can be asked of any team.

And Midland has every right to dust off the old battleery so familiar in sporting circles: "Wait till next year!" With sophomores playing key roles in the campaign just concluded, the 1963-64 season could be as bright or brighter.

As a friendly rival, we salute the

Think Twice And Don't Do It

Realizing that most legislative contraptions wheeled out for inspection won't get off the ground and don't need to be taken seriously, Ohioans should make extra sure a proposal to clip Ohio motorists for the cost of driver training in public schools never flies.

Rep. Judson Hov. R-Cincinnati, has submitted a proposal to increase drivers licenses to $3, an increase of $2.25, with the increase going into a fund to pay for driver

We do not object to the money involved. The present 75-cent fee for a three-year license is unrealistically low. It very properly could be boosted to $3-$1 a year. But if it's boosted, all income should be spent in the State Highway Department.

This is a matter of principle. The principle is that the auto should be used in Ohio as a revenue source for highways-no diversion of income into the twitching hands

It is also a matter of practice. The practice is that some school boards run driver training courses and some don't. Some Ohioans feel that learning to drive a car is not a responsibility of public education at all, no more so than piloting an airplane. They want it to be paid for by its beneficiaries. Under no circumstances should income from drivers licenses be diverted into an educational expense fund.

Bidding For Public Business

The Ohio General Assembly has two proposals before it governing competitive bids:

1. To raise to $2,500 the present $1,000 limit which cities now have under which no bids are required.

2. To force county commissioners to advertise for competitive bids.

We are opposed to the former. We ardently support the latter.

Because inflation has cheapened the dollar since the $1,000 limit was established years ago, there may be some justification for raising the limit. Perhaps $1,500 might be realistic, but $2,500 is too high. The latter simply would be an invitation to reckless handling of the taxpavers' money,

We believe counties should be required to obtain bids for equipment, buildings or services they purchase, just as every other subdivision now is required to do. This includes municipalities, townships, school districts and conservancy districts.

Ohio should have a uniform law applying equally to purchases of all political sub-

Dear Truman Twill:

Everyone is an amateur psychologist these days, and there's no good reason why "Max the Knife" shouldn't try to help you solve the problem of why your "Rottwollie" picks on your aging female spaniel.

It would help considerably if we knew what steps you have already taken in the way of analysis and therapy with this teenager canine. But lacking such information, we will plunge in and do the best we can. If you could get the "Rottwollie" to relax on a couch you probably would discover she somehow equates your old female spaniel with her mother, both of whom, of course, well, you know what they were. Your "Rottwollie" also is one, but she is so young she does not know this yet. No one has told her, and, as you know, it is always the individual chiefly affected who is the last to know such things. Some one of these sad days, some blabbermouth will tell her the truth, plunging her into severe melancholia. I just hope she has compensating satisfactions to enable her to overcome this shock to her psyche. Put yourself in her place, if you can, Twill. Her puppyhood was unhappy because her mother was what she was, and as a puppy the "Rottwollie" was deserted by her real father and thereafter had a long succession of stand-ins.

You run across this frustrating family phenomenon so often it no longer can be

Your description of the "Rottwollie" as ordinarily being carefree, playful and overly friendly indicates repressed anxiety caused by fear of rejection. But her ostensible affection with all except the spaniel shows the basis of her distress is a reverse Oedipus complex.

It might help if you could get some pictures, some scent or a recording of the voice of the mother of the "Rottwollie," to divert her from the morbid association of the spaniel with the mother image

A more extreme solution would be to disguise the true identity of the old spaniel, making her unrecognizable to the "Rott-

You say the young dog likes Sam the Ram. This brings to mind the possibility of making Sam a sacrificial lamb and camoflaging the spaniel in his hide. This is presuming you would not mind having a dog in sheep's clothing around your house.

Barring that, you could increase your show of affection for the young dog, show her she is loved and refrain from disparate favoritism to the spaniel. It is always difficult for a young female to adapt herself in a household in which an older female is firmly established, with the right of eminent domain, so to speak.

There are no words suitable to ease your anguish in such a situation. About all that can be suggested is that you try for assuagement by concentrating on the realization that you are not alone. Thousands of households are living with the same problem, many of them without dogs.

Your appeal for psychological help for your young dog induced all sorts of oddballs to speculate, but remember that good advice is so priceless it should be used

> Faithfully yours. MAX

This and That

Only one former U. S. president has become a chief justice of the Supreme Court. This was William Howard Taft, who was appointed to that post in 1921 by President Warren G. Harding. He resigned in 1930, a few weeks before his death.

With this in mind and with Mr. Kennedy's merry crew providing rich pasturage for an active journalist, I decided to skip the 30th anniversary of those days when the banks rose from the wreckage and the nation awakened from a winter of austerity

Indeed, I recently have declined to appear on certain programs designed to commemorate those battles long ago.

I realize that I was asked not because of my screen appeal but because I might provide interest for antiquarians.

Khrushchev Shifts

By James Marlow

Now Calls Stalin Mental Case

Premier Khrushchev has just straightened the Russians out on what freedom means, if they had any doubts. And while he was at it he shifted emphasis a bit on Stalin whom he denounced in 1956 as a monster and murderer. At that time the picture of Stalin Khrushchev developed was that of a man who increased in cruelty. Now he is making the dictator out to be a mental case. Two years ago the Russian communist party promised the people freedom of speech, press and assembly.

Since freedom is a relative term this would be, if carried out, an improvement of anything the Soviet people had under Stalin.

There is no doubt they have had a greater sense of freedom under Khrushchev than Stalin permitted. A year ago Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times, revisiting Russia after some years, wrote "The strongest and deepest tendencies in Soviet society appear today to be firmly oriented toward Western liberal ideals. "With few exceptions the leaders of Soviet thought in all the more advanced areas of human knowledge are more attracted to ideals of a humanistic nature then to the conventional materialism of Marxist thought. This development apparently went beyond anything Khrushchev had in mind until he began to consider it a menace. Last week he called a halt. He branded Russia's rebellious intellectuals anti-Communists who ally

Khrushchev aimed straight at Ilya Ehrenburg, 72-year-old lead-

Ehrenburg had given voice to their feelings: A plea for peaceful coexistence between the official approved Socialist realism, whatever that is and art forms imported from the West

Khrushchev said a liberal vic tory on this issue would mean "a WASHINGTON achievements in the area of Socialist art.

This sounds vague, and it is, but it contains two points: 1. The Russian intellectuals are getting sick of being told they must think in artistic terms the Communist party considers best 2. Khrushchev told them to cut it out and do what they're told.

Thus he told them any freedoms they thought they had are extremely limited. This doesn't solve the problem since this kind of dictation by the party could have been imposed and accepted 46 years ago when the revolution was new and the masses of the Russian people were illiterate-but not today. As they increase in education and are more exposed to Western ideas and achievements, they will make comparisons with their own culture and become increasingly discontented where they see disadvantages for them. It is in this that the West perhaps has its greatest hope for some eventual peaceful solutions with Russia.

The more the Russians increase in education and material well-being, the less they can be led into war by a Communist party which has ideological goals that come into conflict with their own human and intelligent ones.

If the intellectuals seek to push their luck at this moment-which is a transition point between early Russian poverty and ignorance and modern knowledge and comparative opulence - the Communist party may crack down brut-

Nevertheless, the unrest is there and there is nothing for it to do but grow. Khrushchev's mention of Stalin was in an attempt to point out the achievements of the revolution Stalin guided so long.

But whereas seven years ago Stalin's atrocities were viewed as the result of a simple increase in cruelty, now Khrushchev emphasises that the late dictator suffered from a "persecution ma-

In other words, Khrushchev is making allowance for Stalin's misdeeds on the grounds that he wasn't mentally responsible.

This in effect is a whitewash for the Russian Communist party blow at our beloved revolutionary whose leader Stalin was.

By Rowland Evans Jr.

mounting a massive assault essary votes. against the administration's plan for a permanent increase in the $300 billion debt ceiling.

The struggle over the debt ceiling is actually the first round in the far more important struggle over the President's new tax program, and its outcome may vitally affect the ultimate congressional decision on taxes.

Republicans on the House Ways and Means Committee planning to call Rep. Clarence Cannon, D-Mo as one of the witnesses in the hearings on raising the debt ceiling. Rep. Cannon is the chairman of the House Appropriatons Committee and has impeccable credentials as a fiscal conservative.

These Republicans also are go ing to ask Chairman Wilbur D Mills, D-Ark., of the Ways and Means Committee to summon Treasury Secretary Douglas Dillon and Budget Director Kermit Gordon.

FOR THESE gentlemen the Republicans are preparing a list of tough questions having a single basic objective - to demonstrate that the administration's spending and tax policies guarantee a nonstop rise in the national debt far into the future.

"The hearings on the debt," say Rep. Tomas Curtis, R-Mo., "will put the political spotlight where it belongs, on the spending policies of the Kennedy administration. They are bound to have an important bearing on the admini stration's tax plan. Unless I miss my guess, they will create a powerful anti-spending psychology and this psychology is bound to carry over and perhaps dominate the debate on taxes later in the ses-

Last year the fight over the higher debt ceilings generated one of the bitterest House debates in the entire session. On June 14, the Republicans lost only 21 Republican votes on the crucial measure to dump the administration's plan for a temporary ceiling of $308 billion.

They moved to recommit the $308 billion increase and to substitute their own plan for a $306 billion ceiling. The motion lost 258 to 145.

On final passage of the $308 bilhon ceiling, a scant nine Republicans went along with the administration, and 39 Democrats joined the Republicans. The result was a whisker-thin 211 to 192 margin for the President.

That was the last action in the House on the debt ceiling in 1962. What President Kennedy now is asking is a continuation of the $308 billion ceiling through June 30, 1963, and a further elevation of the ceiling after that.

No figure has been revealed, but the fiscal experts in the House expect the President to seek a new ceiling in the general area of $315 billion or more. This would become effective sometime next fall, before the heavy-collection period of corporate taxes starts to fill the Treasury in late fall.

You're looking at our Impala Super Sport Convertible which, along with its cousin the Sport Coupe, absolutely embarrasses higher priced cars. That special trim and those front bucket seats merely hint at the comforts you find in every Impala SS.

Performance? It's remarkable, an understatement we can afford when there are 7 engines to choose from. One of which is the popular 340-hp Turbo-Fire 409*, a wizard in traffic and a joy on the open road. And others all the way up to 425 hp*.

If you want an extra flourish or two, mull over extra-cost options like floor-shift four-speed manual or Powerglide transmission, Positraction rear axle for better road adhesion, fade-resistant sintered-metallic brake linings, and a tachometer to relay what's cooking up front.

Just before you rush off to your Chevrolet dealer. may we remind you that both Impala Super Sports offer the new Comfortilt steering wheel*. You adjust it to suit your driving style, flick it out of the way for easy entry and exit.

All three Chevrolet series-Biscayne, Bel Air and Impala-deserve a long look. Super Sports almost demand it.

Burglars Get Needle Pattern $300 In Tools From Garage

Tools worth $300 to $350 were taken in a weekend burglary of an auto body shop on the Pennsylvania Ave. "Hill Rd.," police reported.

The entry at Jack's Auto Body. 303 Pennsylvania Ave., was timed between 10 p. m. Saturday and 10:30 a. m. Sunday. The owners were listed as Jack Triner, 136 Thompson Ave., and Lawrence Coleman of Chester R. D. 1.

Triner told police he closed the garage at 10 Saturday night and discovered the entry at 10:30 a. m. Sunday. Entry was forced by breaking a lock on the front door, he said.

The intruder also entered room over the main garage, breaking a wooden panel in a door, but nothing was taken upstairs, police said.

The missing items consist principally of small hand tools, officers said. A half-inch drill and a box of other tools also is missing, officers said. The missing tools include socket and open-end New jacket, knitted mainly in wrenches, police said. The intrud-

Ohio Traffic Kills 12 More

Traffic Miscellaneous Totals

By The Associated Press Automobile collisions that killed four persons near New Philadelphia and three in Cleveland pushed the Ohio weekend traffic toll to 12 known dead.

Besides those two accidents accounting for a big share of the deaths, there were three mishaps in which vehicles killed pedestri-

The state's over-all accident toll was at least 17.

In non-traffic fatalities, two Columbus men died after drinking poison weed killer from a bottle they thought contained whisky, two Putnam County youngsters drowned and a Cincinnati man fell down a flight of hotel stairs. The Associated press weekend survey covered the 54 hours between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Sunday.

The fatalities:

EARN WHILE LEARNING
MANY companys need men with a willingness and desire to be sucwillingness and desire to be successful, however, these men never seem to attain what they set out to do. Why is this? I believe it to be a lack of product knowledge and company background. Training and schooling has to be the answer. Our now successful men come from all walks of life. Farming, ministry, shop workers, truck drivers, etc. Why not call Mintersyille 264-1627 for appointment to see if you might qualify for on the job training.

Junior Editors Quiz on-TANKS

QUESTION: Why are some army tanks called Patton tanks?

ANSWER: Tanks are armored vehicles with mounted guns, and were developed by the British during World War I. The British wanted to keep this invention a secret, and at first claimed they were merely "tanks" for carrying water. After the innocent-looking water tanks started spouting bullets, people still called them "tanks."

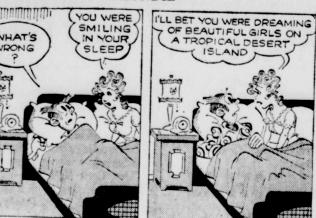

George Smith Patton was a capable and aggressive American officer who had made a study of the use of cavalry. He saw in the development of the tank a continuation of the cavalry idea, that of fast attack across a battlefield. He had battle experience with tanks in World War I and, in World War II, used tanks in Sicily. But Patton's great opportunity to carry out his conception of fast-moving attack with tanks came when he commanded the U. S. 3rd Army in the successful Allied drive across France in 1944. It was in Gen. Patton's honor that the model M-46 tank was named. This model was built during World War II and used afterwards in the Korean campaign. Patton's name seemed appropriate for a tank because of his reputation for driving ahead over obstacles.

FOR YOU TO DO: Read the story of the Allied sweep across France in 1944 so you will further understand the part played by Gen. Patton and the tanks.
